Abstract:

The European Union (EU) has undergone different stages of the establishment from preparing, expanding to officially founding with 27 members. They have drafted initial documents to set up the EU institutions. By promulgating three main institutions in the EU system, they have introduced a process of founding and operating institutions on the basis of the unanimity of the member states in EU. The Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) with the aim of accelerating collaboration and association in the region has made a profound and significant impact on the lives of people in Southeast Asia. This paper analyzes the general issues of framework legislation of the EU, the concerns of the ASEAN community like the need to form the framework legislation of the ASEAN Community as well as the requirements and contributions of Vietnam in this matter.
